Focus Questions

1. Become one of the personality disorders marked by odd or eccentric traits and describe the symptoms you will create in your host. As well, talk about the family, social, and occupational problems they will experience because of you and treatment options.

2. Become one of the personality disorders marked by dramatic, emotional, or erratic traits and describe the symptoms you will create in your host. As well, talk about the family, social, and occupational problems they will experience because of you and treatment options.

3. Become one of the personality disorders marked by anxious or fearful traits and describe the symptoms you will create in your host. As well, talk about the family, social, and occupational problems they will experience because of you and treatment options.